HOWARD DISCUSSES THE BOOK OF LUKE

EXCELLENT INSTRUCTION IN BIBLE WORK AT THE CONFERENCE.

ROUND TABLE GREATS INTEREST

President Hoover of Carthage College Was Interesting—Big Debate on Woman's Suffrage Slated for Next Wednesday.

The Bible conference attendances are increasing daily and there is no doubt that it is due to the high class instruction in Bible work which is being offered by the Conference management.

This morning Rev. E. G. Howard went into a very thorough study for the hour allotted him, of the Book of Luke. His subject was "The Beginning of the Life and Ministry of Jesus Christ."

He made comparisons and contrasts of Luke with the other gospels and emphasized the fact that Luke was written to all people while the other writers were addressing certain classes.

President H. D. Hoover of Carthage College, gave one of the best and most instructive talks yet heard at the Round Table yesterday afternoon on "Play as an Essential to Education."

He declared that play was an absolute necessity in order to be able to learn to work.

"There are two theories of play—one, that it is caused by surplus energy of the child and the other, that play is instinctive. The first is correct in part, and also the second, because play is instinctive.

"The developing instinct may be noted very easily by those interested. First the child acts according to sensations—his play is entirely physical; second, he begins to learn differences in things and plays for the novelty of it; then imagination comes in, and lastly, reason and judgment.

"Play is an essential of physical conditions. I do not like the present system of athletics in our colleges and schools. I believe in athletics, however, but not in the kind we now have. The time is not far distant when they will be left behind. As soon as we play for a purpose we are not really playing. We should have more of that play for the mere pleasure of it.

"The kind of play we have in our colleges should be something that can be carried out later in life. When a man finishes his college he is done with football, baseball and the other games forever, and his work for honors in the games is of no further value to him."

Intense interest has been aroused in the debate scheduled for Round Table next Wednesday afternoon. The subject is "Should Women Vote?" and is to be taken by two of the ablest men in the city.

Secretary Elwood T. Bailey of the Y. M. C. A., will have the ladies with him—that is, the majority of them, for he has the affirmative. Another secretary—to a congressman—John H. Byers, will have to be on the look out for personal attacks from the audience, as he has the wrong side of the question, so far as the fair sex is concerned.

Mr. Bailey has seen to it that the Assembly's official reporter is to talk to an appreciative audience. He has extended an invitation to all the women's clubs of the city to be present.

However, Mr. Byers has received many assurances that he is going to be applauded by at least two women, who declare themselves against the right of suffrage for the women.

Mr. Bailey has confided to friends that he is in earnest and will undoubtedly carry away the honors, but Mr. Byers is equally firm in the conviction that he already has the Y. M. C. A. secretary by the scalp, despite the adverse opinions he has to contend with.

The interest is so great that it may be necessary to transfer the scene of the conflict to the auditorium to accommodate the crowds.

Y. secretary and congressman's secretary have already given some intimation of their line of argument to those who will keep the secret and

GEN. LUKE E. WRIGHT

General Wright of Tennessee, formerly secretary of war, may be nominated for the vice-presidency on the Progressive ticket, if it is decided to give the second place to a southerner.

WILL NOT APPROVE MRS. SCOTT'S BONDS

JUSTICE CONDON AND W. B. McMAHAN REFUSE TO ACCEPT BONDS.

Circuit Clerk W. B. McMahan has declined to approve the bond for $400 furnished by Ellen J. Scott, Frank Morris and J. H. Long, filed for the appeal of the case against Mrs. Scott, who was found guilty of conducting a house of ill-fame by a jury in Justice Condon's court.

The bond was filed with the justice last Thursday but Mr. Condon refused to accept it, and accordingly Attorney Brooks, representing Mrs. Scott, presented it to Mr. McMahan July 22. The circuit clerk has investigated the bond and is not satisfied that the signers held property to the amount and he so notified the attorney.

Accordingly Mrs. Scott stands committed to jail and it is probable that within a week Justice Condon will be asked by the city officials to issue a mittimus committing her to the city jail until the fine and costs are paid.

THOUGHT HORSE STOLEN.

When Police Commissioner Gannon arose this morning and went out to the barn to feed his horse, he was horrified to find the stall empty. The rear door of the barn was closed and Mr. Gannon could not understand the disappearance of the animal. Accordingly he summoned the police and Sergeant Gaffney responded to the call. A search was instituted and in a short time the horse was found eating oats in a neighbor's barn. It had escaped through the front door, and after eating its fill of grass had wandered into the other barn. The policeman unkindly insinuated that the horse got hungry and wanted to find a boarding house where it could get a good feed.

Reception by Women

Immediately after the contest the local W. C. T. U. gave a reception to the visiting members of the organization.

Strickland W. Gillilan, the famous lecturer and humorist, who will give an entertainment at the Assembly tonight, writes the management from Kansas that he will arrive in Dixon at 6 p. m. and will give the Dixon people "the best I have in my shop."

Gillilan is one of the best entertainers on the platform and fills engagements all over the country. He left his home in Baltimore in June and will be busy until October before he will enjoy a visit with his family. Thursday night he will leave Dixon for Trenton, Mo. He will be unable, he writes, to visit his relatives here, so if they wish to visit him they must attend the Assembly tonight. "I can visit with 3000 people as well as I can with five or six," he writes. Gillilan does not care to be dined by relatives when he lectures. "I always add $50 more to my price if I must be entertained by relatives or in private homes," says he.

If you want to spend a good evening and be highly entertained at the same time, better spend this evening with Strickland Gillilan at the Assembly.

Chicago Singers Good.

It was expected that the Chicago Operatic company would please a large audience last evening, and they did. Their concert was high class. All the musicians of Dixon attended and that goes to show that the company was sure to please.

The concert consisted of quartet, duet and solo work. Mr. Nelson rendered a pleasing piano solo. There are many people who say the company put on a better concert last evening than they did last season.

This excellent organization will play another concert next Monday night.

Last night the company drew the largest audience of the season.

Adrian Pleased All.

Henry Augustus Adrian, who delivered a lecture full of advocacy of radical reforms in our present day education and an instruction of the young at the Assembly yesterday, spoke on the subject, "A Cabbage With a College Education," illustrated.

Mr. Adrian, who is a Luther Burbank man, wants the many fields to become paths of glory for the young. He would discard arithmetic, grammar, history and quit educating our students in the past, but give them a living education. He predicts such a revolution will come within a few years.

Water Ball Draws Crowds.

Water ball at the Assembly proved a winner yesterday afternoon, when hundreds of people jammed the beach to witness a practice game between teams made up of swimmers on the ground—or rather, in the water.

Tomorrow a game between the business men will be the feature. There will be about ten men on each team so that any who get the chills may be relieved. The game is scheduled for 4 p. m.

The solo work of Dr. E. A. Sickels in yesterday's game was highly appreciated by the audience which listened attentively—er-ah-watched closely every movement of the star player.

Another "scrub" game is on the board for this afternoon, but tomorrow the big things come off. Next week a game will be played every warm day.

Friday's Program.

One of the ablest lecturers in the Lutheran church, Dr. H. D. Hoover, president of Carthage college, will deliver a lecture at 2:30 p. m. Friday in the auditorium on "The New Race." ENGINEER EGAN RESIGNS POSITION

INLET DRAINAGE COMMISSIONERS WILL APPOINT A NEW MAN.

APPROVE CONSTRUCTION CO. BONDS

Mr. Egan Was Thoroughly Acquainted With Details of the Big Work—Indiana Man Bids Lowest on Tile Work.

John M. Egan Jr., of Amboy, formerly city engineer of Dixon, yesterday tendered his resignation as engineer of the Inlet Swamp drainage project to the drainage commissioners, and they accepted it. The resignation resulted from some disagreements during the recent letting of the contract for the big work to be done under the 8th assessment, and while each of the commissioners is exceptionally sorry to lose Mr. Egan's services they thought it best to accept his resignation under the conditions existing. His successor will be appointed within a short time. Mr. Egan is the engineer who laid out all of the work to be done under the 8th assessment and he assisted the commissioners greatly in the hearing of the case in the county court, probably being more familiar with the entire job than any other man.

The commissioners yesterday approved the bonds of the Northern Construction company of Elkhart, Ind., which firm was awarded the contract for the earth and rock work, and under the terms of the contract the company must have machinery on the grounds and commence work within 20 days. The contract for the tile work, which will amount to about $70,000, has not been let and the commissioners will take no action on that detail pending the arrival of J. C. Vanette of Brookston, Ind., whose bid is the lowest. The contract will not be awarded to him, however, until after he has met the commissioners and they have had a conference with him.

"Fred A. Watson has organized the Red School House Shoe company with a capital stock of $300,000, to take over the factory at Dixon."

A Telegraph reporter made an effort to confirm the above through interviews with local men, who are interested in the company, but none of them would either affirm or deny the story, nor would they make any statements regarding the possibility of the factory being started up in the near future, although it is generally understood that the factory will be running within a very few weeks at the most.

Are capable of attaining to anything, but should be very careful. Curiosity is marked. Fond of singing. Buoyant and elastic in spirits, full of fun and jollity. Water for Nervousness.

A trained nurse says: "If people would only drink more water they would not be so nervous." Nearly every doctor will recommend a woman who is suffering from nervous prostration or nervous exhaustion to drink lots of water between meals, but many women who do not come under a doctor's care would look better and feel better if they would drink at least a quart of water in the course of the day. Water seems to be a nerve food like good butter. It has a distinctly soothing effect when sipped gradually as one can test for herself. Water drunk slowly and gradually has some what the same quality as deep breathing.

AUTO SKIDS ON SLIPPERY STREET

LE FEVRE MACHINE COASTED INTO PAVEMENT COMFY WHEELS INTO PHONE POLE ON WET PAVEMENT AND SLIGHTLY INJURED PASSENGERS.

A very unpleasant accident occurred early this afternoon when the automobile driven by Lee LeFevre of Woosung accidentally ran into a telephone pole. Upon turning the corner of Fellows street and Galena avenue, on their way from the Assembly, the car skidded and bumped into the telephone pole, jarring the occupants of the car quite badly. The car contained Mrs. Mary Beede and H. C. Elssner. Mrs. Beede received a very bad injury to her right hand and it is believed she is injured internally. She has been placed in charge of a physician and it is hoped nothing serious will result. The front of the machine was badly smashed, but the other occupants of the car escaped without any serious injuries.

Wouldn't War on the Ministry.

There are some drawbacks to the teaching of language by sound, especially where the younger school element is being instructed by that system. In one of the first grade classes of the Greenwood school lately the teacher was endeavoring to drill the Band of Mercy slogan into the young brains. One clause of the "resolve" is an injunction to be "kind to all harmless living creatures." Somehow the pronunciation of this phrase did not quite suit and the teacher asked for a repetition, and still there was something queer about the way it was repeated. Finally she requested one member of the class to say it to himself, and while she could not yet quite see what was the matter it did not sound right.

"Now, Tommy, say it over again slowly. 'I resolve to be kind to all harmless living creatures,'" said the teacher, bound to get the straight of the matter.

Tommy repeated slowly, and while there seemed to be nothing exactly wrong with the rest of the sentence, the final word sounded off color.

"Is that 'creatures' you are saying there, Tommy?" asked the puzzled teacher. "Say it all again."

With the sweetest resignation in the world the boy repeated, "I resolve to be kind to all harmless living preachers."—Kansas City Journal.

The Experience of Two Girls Here Related For The Benefit of Others.

Rochester, N. Y.—"I have a daughter 13 years old who has always been very healthy until recently when she complained of dizziness and cramps every month, so bad that I would have to keep her home from school and put her to bed to get relief.

"After giving her only two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound she is now enjoying the best of health. I cannot praise your Compound too highly. I want every good mother to read what your medicine has done for my child."—Mrs. RICHARD N. DUNHAM, 311 Exchange St., Rochester, N. Y.

Stoutsville, Ohio.—"I suffered from headaches, backache and was very irregular. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and before I had taken the whole of two bottles I found relief. I am only sixteen years old, but I have better health than for two or three years. I cannot express my thanks for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I had taken other medicines but did not find relief."—Miss CORA B. FOSNAUGH, Stoutsville, Ohio, R. F. D., No. 1.

Hundreds of such letters from mothers expressing their gratitude for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished for their daughters have been received by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

DR. W. F. AYDELOTTE,

Neurologist and Health Instructor, 223 Crawford Ave., Dixon, Ill.

DEMENTTOWN

Look out for the executive committee of the Bull Moosers. The duties of that committee, as outlined at the meeting of the county central committee yesterday, are to "raise money for the campaign."

Groomer of Mankind Josephus Allen deserted his habitual haunts yesterday for a journey down town. As far as is known he was not lost.

When some people do a good act they talk about it so much that no one has a chance to praise them.

There are some women in Dixon who don't like to talk about their female acquaintances, but insist that some of them should have nine lives.

There are some lawyers who just as soon take the right side of a case as the wrong one, providing, of course, there's as much money in it.

Which recalls a remark we overheard yesterday to the effect that if all of the would-be attorneys would go to work there wouldn't be such a scarcity of farm hands.

Ever notice that there's nothing in the world that will make a fellow look more poverty-stricken than to have his hair grow scraggly around his neck?

Hank Higgins says his brother Hank Higgins says his brother Bert's farm is so poor that it's even purty hard work to raise children on it.

Rev. Windy of Hardshell church is thinkin' of resigning his position. He can't get enough lathing and plastering on the side to make both ends meet.

Elmer Purdy says he gets so much breakfast food at his boardin' house that he might just as well live down at the feed barn.

Keziah Scruggins, the new prop. of the hotel, has sent to the city for some of them swell tables de hots like they serve in some of the hotels there. He says he don't know whether they are fish or vegetables but he's going to try 'em a whirl and see how his boarders like 'em.

That Black Eye.

He was stooping over the auto crank, when it kicked back, causing the eye to go into immediate and deep mourning. That was the absolute truth of the affair, but here are some of the things he heard from his friends today.

Been having a fight? What's the lady's name?

Your wife can throw things pretty straight, can't she?

You ought to get on the water wagon.

Oh yes, I've heard that auto-crank story before.

That story will do to tell women and children, but you ought to know better than try and hand it to me.

Wear glasses and then they won't dare hit you in the eye.

What was the bartender sore at you about? Can't you leave the place at closing up time without being thrown out?

TO DEFINE U. S. POLICY

Senate Urged to Reaffirm the Monroe Doctrine.

American Government Disapproves Any Foreign Power Gaining Foot-hold on This Continent.

Washington, Aug. 1.—Reaffirmation of the Monroe doctrine, that the powers of the world may understand the United States decidedly disapproves any foreign military or naval base or any acquisition of territory which might be used for such purposes on the western hemisphere, was urged upon the senate by the foreign relations committee. Consideration went over as a parliamentary formality, but when the subject is taken up it is expected the senate will endorse the committee's report, which, though directed at the recent Magdalena bay incident, proclaims principles which are to indicate the position of this government.

The resolution is as follows:

"Resolved, That, when any harbor or other place on the American continent is so situated that the occupation thereof for naval or military purposes might threaten the communications or the safety of the United States, the government of the United States could not see without grave concern the possession of such harbor or other place, by any corporation or association which has such a relation to another government not American as to give that government practical power of control for national purposes."

FUNK JURY INDICTS GIRL

Lawyer and Detective Also Held—Bill Charges Conspiracy and Perjury.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—Attorney Daniel Donahue, Isaac Stiefel, a private detective, and Allen Heppner, a witness in the $25,000 alienation suit brought against Clarence S. Funk by Mrs. John C. Henning, were indicted here by the grand jury for alleged conspiracy. Miss Heppner also was indicted on a second charge of perjury. A great deal of surprise was caused by the failure of the grand jury to indict John C. Henning, who brought the suit against Funk.

Twenty-four track and field men were in the large party who left the Vaterland.

Missing the Point.

Representative Bucker of Colorado, apropos of a tariff argument about sugar, said to a Washington correspondent: "Oh, well, those men don't see my point. They miss my point as badly as the old lady missed her son's."

"Mother," a young man said, "would you believe that it takes 5,000 elephants a year to make our piano keys and billiard balls? Make our piano keys and billiard balls!" cried the old lady. "Well! I always understood that elephants were intelligent creatures, but I never knew before that they'd been trained to make piano keys and billiard balls."

Everybody Pretty Green.

"How so?"

Lees Summit, Mo., Aug. 1.—Cole Younger, the ex-bandit, former member of the Jesse James gang of train robbers, while attending William J. Bryan's lecture at the Pleasant Hill chautauque, was robbed of $95 by a pickpocket.

Younger says this is his first experience along this line and that he does not mind the loss of the money so much as the fact that he was a victim.

WAS AFRAID OF EXCITEMENT

Reasons Advanced by Man Who Wanted to Get Off Bond of Mail Contractor.

The departments in Washington receive some queer letters. Below is given verbatim a letter received last November by the bureau that has charge of the bonds of mail contractors, from a man who wished to get off a bond. It is unique. The last sentence contains a valuable suggestion to others who dislike to receive disagreeable news, especially on business matters. The letter tells how he signed the bond merely to oblige a friend and then continues with this personal history:

"I risk my life to go to the lecture this fall I have done all I can for you office men at the White house. So I Wood like if you office men Wood get me out of trouble so I could Rest I halut Work one day for 13 years on count of Palpitation of the Heart Some times I can't bare the clock Strike So men do my heart is Weak you office men Do all you can to get me out of trouble. If they had told me the letter was 4 year I Never Wood sind the bond I thought it Was 1 year So I Was told when you Rite Don't Rite any thing that will excite me it Will Fly to My Heart."—Kansas City Star.

BECKER HIT BY 'BALD JACK' ROSE

Says Lieutenant Ordered Rosenthal Killed July 9, But Plot Failed.

CHOSEN GUNMEN LOSE NERVE

"Fleet of Thugs" Taken to Restaurant Where Victim Dines With Wife Back Out at Last Moment, He Declares—More Arrests.

New York, Aug. 1.—Police Lieut. Charles Becker, head of the "strong arm" squad of gambling raiders, who is charged with instigating the murder of Herman Rosenthal, gambler, was further implicated in the plot to get rid of the gambler when "Bald Jack" Rose and "Bridge" Webber added another chapter to their already amazing allegations.

They told District Attorney Whitman that Rosenthal was to have been killed at the instigation of Becker ten days before he actually met his fate and that the plot failed because the underworld thugs selected to do the murder lost their nerve at the last moment.

The district attorney spent the greater part of the afternoon with Rose and Webber in their cells at the West side police station, and under the promise of leniency which the prosecutor has given them they talked freely.

First Murder Plot Failed.

The "plot that failed" was to have been brought to its climax at the Garden restaurant on Fifty-first street on Saturday night, July 6, when Rosenthal and his wife were dining there, according to the account told by Rose to the district attorney as spokesman for the two gamblers. With Rosenthal and his wife at the time was Jack Sullivan, the newsboy now under arrest for alleged complicity in the murder.

Rose himself engineered the "job," he said, and brought to the restaurant "a fleet of thugs" who were to do the actual shooting, according to Rose. Two of the hired assassins were "Gyp the Blood" and "Lefty" Louie, who are wanted by the police as two of the men who actually shot Rosenthal ten days later in front of the hotel Metropole.

Becker at that time was down town, Rose said, waiting for the murder plot to be consummated.

Gaynor Calls Special Session.

Mayor Gaynor issued a call for a special meeting of the board of aldermen on Monday next for the purpose of authorizing a committee to investigate police conditions in the city.

Whether Lieutenant Becker will care to avail himself of an opportunity to make his own position—easier by telling the prosecutor the recipients of the graft money which "Bald Jack" Rose says he turned over to Becker is doubtful. If Becker is disposed to tell his story it must be complete in every detail, the district attorney is reported to have said.

According to rumor around District Attorney Whitman's office, only a little more evidence is needed to require the arrest of two men on Commissioner Waldo's staff. It is understood they will be charged with extortion. The proof already in hand, it is said, is strong, but more is to come.

DEMENTTOWN

Look out for the executive committee of the Bull Moosers. The duties of that committee, as outlined at the meeting of the county central committee yesterday, are to "raise money for the campaign."

Groomer of Mankind Josephus Allen deserted his habitual haunts yesterday for a journey down town. As far as is known he was not lost.

When some people do a good act they talk about it so much that no one has a chance to praise them.

There are some women in Dixon who don't like to talk about their female acquaintances, but insist that some of them should have nine lives.

There are some lawyers who's just as soon take the right side of a case as the wrong one, providing, of course, there's as much money in it.

Which recalls a remark we overheard yesterday to the effect that if all of the would-be attorneys would go to work there wouldn't be such a scarcity of farm hands.

Ever notice that there's nothing in the world that will make a fellow look more poverty-stricken than to have his hair grow scraggly around his neck?

Hank Higgins says his brother Bert's farm is so poor that it's even purty hard work to raise children on it.

Rev. Windy of Hardshell church is thinkin' of resigning his position. He can't get enough lathing and plastering on the side to make both ends meet.

Elmer Purdy says he gets so much breakfast food at his boardin' house that he might just as well live down at the feed barn.

Kezikiah Scruggins, the new prop. of the hotel, has sent to the city for some of them swell tables de hotes like they serve in some of the hotels there. He says he don't know whether they are fish or vegetables but he's going to try 'em a whirl and see how his boarders like 'em.

That Black Eye.

He was stooping over the auto crank, when it kicked back, causing the eye to go into immediate and deep mourning. That was the absolute truth of the affair, but here are some of the things he heard from his friends today.

Been having a fight? What's the lady's name?

Your wife can throw things pretty straight, can't she?

You ought to get on the water wagon.

Oh yes, I've heard that auto-crank story before.

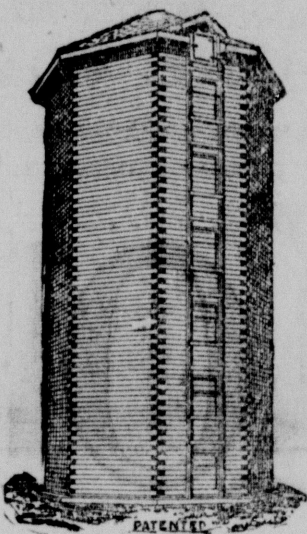

That story will do to tell women and children, but you ought to know better than try and hand it to me.

Wear glasses and then they won't dare hit you in the eye.

What was the bartender sore at you about? Can't you leave the place at closing up time without being thrown out?

Refer to the little yellow tag and if in arrears send P. O. order to the Telegraph.

TO DEFINE U. S. POLICY

Senate Urged to Reaffirm the Monroe Doctrine.

American Government Disapproves Any Foreign Power Gaining Foothold on This Continent.

Washington, Aug. 1.—Reaffirmation of the Monroe doctrine, that the powers of the world may understand the United States decidedly disapproves any foreign military or naval base or any acquisition of territory which might be used for such purposes on the western hemisphere, was urged upon the senate by the foreign relations committee. Consideration went over as a parliamentary formality, but when the subject is taken up it is expected the senate will endorse the committee's report, which, though directed at the recent Magdalena bay incident, proclaims principles which are to indicate the position of this government.

The resolution is as follows: "Resolved, That, when any harbor or other place on the American continent is so situated that the occupation thereof for naval or military purposes might threaten the communications or the safety of the United States, or the government of the United States could not see without grave concern the possession of such harbor or other place, by any corporation or association which has such a relation to another government not American as to give that government practical power of control for national purposes."

Missing the Point.

Representative Bucker of Colorado, apropos of a tariff argument about sugar, said to a Washington correspondent: "Oh, well, those men don't see my point. They miss my point as badly as the old lady missed her son's." "Mother," a young man said, "would you believe that it takes 5,000 elephants a year to make our piano keys and billiard balls? Make our piano keys and billiard balls!" cried the old lady. "Well! I always understood that elephants were intelligent creatures, but I never knew before that they'd been trained to make piano keys and billiard balls."

Reasons Advanced by Man Who Wanted to Get Off Bond of Mail Contractor.

The departments in Washington receive some queer letters. Below is given verbatim a letter received last November by the bureau that has charge of the bonds of mail contractors, from a man who wished to get off a bond. It is unique. The last sentence contains a valuable suggestion to others who dislike to receive disagreeable news, especially on business matters. The letter tells how he signed the bond merely to oblige a friend and then continues with this personal history:

"I risk my life to go to the lecture this fall I have Done all I can for you office Men at the White house. So I Wood like if you office Men Wood get me out of trouble so I Cod Rest I halat Work one Day for 13 years on count of Palpitation of the Heart Some times I can't bare the clock Strike So you No My heart is Weak you office Men Do all you can to get Mee out of trouble. CHOSEN GUNMEN LOSE NERVE

"Fleet of Thugs" Taken to Restaurant Where Victim Dines With Wife Back Out at Last Moment, He Declares—More Arrests.

New York, Aug. 1.—Police Lieut. Charles Becker, head of the "strong arm" squad of gambling raiders, who is charged with instigating the murder of Herman Rosenthal, gambler, was further implicated in the plot to get rid of the gambler when "Bald Jack" Rose and "Bridge" Webber added another chapter to their already amazing allegations.

They told District Attorney Whitman that Rosenthal was to have been killed at the instigation of Becker ten days before he actually met his fate and that the plot failed because the underworld thugs selected to do the murder lost their nerve at the last moment.

The district attorney spent the greater part of the afternoon with Rose and Webber in their cells at the West side police station, and under the promise of leniency which the prosecutor has given them they talked freely.

First Murder Plot Failed.

The "plot that failed" was to have been brought to its climax at the Garden restaurant on Fifty-first street on Saturday night, July 6, when Rosenthal and his wife were dining there, according to the account told by Rose to the district attorney as spokesman for the two gamblers. With Rosenthal and his wife at the time was Jack Sullivan, the newsboy now under arrest for alleged complicity in the murder.

Rose himself engineered the "job," he said, and brought to the restaurant "a fleet of thugs" who were to do the actual shooting, according to Rose. Two of the hired assassins were "Gyp the Blood" and "Lefty" Louie, who are wanted by the police as two of the men who actually shot Rosenthal ten days later in front of the hotel Metropole.

George Walgreen of DeKalb is visiting a few days at the home of J. Robert Eyer.

Dr. and Mrs. Z. W. Moss write to Dixon friends from New York City that they are having the finest kind of a time in the east, fishing and bathing in the ocean, and sailing on the deep. They expect to be home about the fifth.

Mr. and Mrs. Hull Canfield and family motored from Chana Wednesday to the Assembly.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Williams, Miss Grace Williams and Rev. March of Lafayette attended Wednesday's program.

Mrs. H. W. Yates entertained Mrs. C. M. Hugnet at supper Wednesday at the hotel.

the indications are that there will be a battle royal.

Many Greet Mrs. Baldwin.

Mrs. Maude Junkin Baldwin, Philadelphia, perhaps the most prominent Sunday school worker in Pennsylvania, addressed the Bible conference this morning and delivered a splendid address on "The Elementary Child and His Teaching." Mrs. Baldwin is a talented woman; she is so full of her subject, she knows the child, which is the greatest faculty a Sunday school teacher can possess.

She is a contributor to the Sunday School Times and is trying to carry out the work John Wanamaker wished done. Pennsylvania's Sunday School association is the only one in the country the Illinois association bows to. The Pennsylvania association is greater because it has on its membership roll more men with money who contribute large sums for the work.

Mrs. Baldwin believes the home is responsible for good Sunday schools. She believes God holds parents responsible for the children and that the home is not doing what it should for the Sunday school.

She declares that there are names of parents on the church roll, whose children never pray and never hear thanksgiving at the table.

"So far as the teaching of God's word is concerned the day schools are not what they should be," declared the speaker.

Mrs. Baldwin maintains that you must teach children that God is not only the Creator of things, but the Father of all things as well.

She maintains that you must teach children the difference between right and wrong.

"When children are ready to leave the junior department they should know the books of the bible and be able to quote passages of scripture. In this department as well as the elementary you must teach the children the habit of giving and the habit of self-control," said Mrs. Baldwin.

Mrs. Baldwin believes children will be just what parents make them. Parents should do the things they wish the children to do. The child must have a directed will, a trained will.

It would be a good thing if every father and mother camping on the Assembly grounds, or elsewhere, could hear this noble woman at least once.

University Man Talks.

At 11 a. m. Rev. Lloyd C. Douglas, of the University of Illinois, addressed the conference on "Voluntary Bible Study in the University."

Rev. Douglas, who is a young man, aroused a great deal of interest as was evidenced by the number of questions he was called upon to answer at the close of his talk.

The speaker said he did not believe the curriculum study of the bible was a success as after the Holy Book has been tested by all scientific formulas there is little left.

He admitted that voluntary bible study is not exactly popular among the students, but cited figures to show that a surprisingly large percentage of the college men attend the voluntary classes.

Miss Brehm Lectures.
Miss Brehm continues to address large audiences each afternoon in the auditorium. Wednesday afternoon she delivered a telling lecture on "Kings and Queens." This talented woman is a power in temperance work and each year she does greater work for the cause. The Assembly management makes no mistake in selecting Miss Brehm to take charge of this department of the Assembly program.

Social at Bethany Hall.

Miss Celia Lyday, superintendent of Bethany department, states that she will give a social at Bethany hall Friday evening. Refreshments will be served. Miss Lyday states that all the young women on the grounds will be present at the social.

This department of the Assembly enters its third season with a warm welcome to the girls of the Assembly. The aim of the department is to develop strong, sweet, womanly, christian character. At the Bethany meeting the spiritual needs are considered.

This is what Bethany stands for. When Christ was upon earth he frequently visited the little town of Bethany, and was often in the home of Mary and Martha. The name of Bethany applies particularly to religious work for young women, because He met and blessed the women there.

Bethany meetings are held at twilight each evening except Sunday. The service consists of a short bible talk by the superintendent, songs and prayer.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN CITY ON THE DEFENSIVE.

The Telegraph, Tuesday night, printed an article largely composed of extracts from speeches delivered by Messrs. Schuler and Van Bibber, concerning me, relative to the prosecution of two young men. This trouble grew out of an attempt to prosecute Mrs. Ellen Scott, an elderly lady, of about 70 years of age, replete, unable to work, poverty-stricken to the extent of starvation at times when her pension money runs out, which she receives as the widow of Mr. Scott, a soldier. The prosecution was the second attempted by the city—the first ending in a signal failure which I tried. The gentlemen arrested were Albert Dobler and a Mr. Mueller. They were witnesses against Mrs. Scott. They were boasting of their conduct. Mr. Van Bibber heard of this and subpoenaed them as witnesses. He promised them nothing, he says. They testified Van Bibber promised them nothing. Both of these men testified to the commission of an unmentionable crime, which was repeated on several occasions. Mr. Dobler testified that he invited and took to the Scott home at least two other young men for the purpose of having them commit the unmentionable crime with various women whom he swore were inmates of that house. Dobler swore that not only he committed this crime there, but that he induced two other young men to go with him and do likewise.

Under the statutes of Illinois and by the same section, both Dobler and Mueller were guilty of crime and subject to the same punishment as Mrs. Scott. I thought that what was "saucer for the goose should be saucer for the gander." Accordingly, after Mr. Scott had failed to get a bond which the officers would accept, and after her right to an appeal and retrial had passed I prepared the complaints upon which the warrants were issued and the arrests made, not to intimidate the witnesses of the city as charged, because the Scott case was over and Dobler and Mueller were not and could not be further witnesses in the case, as there was no case in which they could testify.

When these men were arrested and brought to the justice office I was not there. I went there after dinner and Dobler and Mueller were there. Dobler said I thought this case was all over. I said the Scott case is, but this is a suit against you for going to such a house and doing the thing you testified you did. I told them they had the right to get a lawyer have a trial and jury. They said they did not want a lawyer, jury or a trial that they were guilty and wanted to get out of it as cheaply as they could. Both Shaulis and Howell told them the same thing. They did not ask for Van Bibber or anyone else. The justice told them they could go and get anyone they wished to represent them. They said no, and then gave certain reasons why they thought the fine should be light. They told of the law in Switzerland and said they did not know they could be fined for such a thing here. They asked how much the fine would be. I said to the justice I would recommend a small fine. He said $5.00? I said yes under the circumstances. They said they did not have the money and wanted to know if they could have a couple of days to pay it. I said yes. They said their money was on deposit in the bank on interest, that they drew interest on July 15th last. The justice said the cost and fine was about $8 apiece, and they could get that much and settle it up. They then left the office alone to get the money. They met Mr. Van Bibber and he took them over to Kent's and Hanneken's offices. Hanneken came over to Shaulis' office and after some talk went back and again came over with the defendants. Van Bibber and Schuler and after much bluffing and abuse by Schuler, Hanneken wanted to pay up and demanded a receipt containing words which Shaulis could and would not give. Then Van Bibber and Schuler demanded an appeal and, though not requested by either Dobler or Mueller, signed the bonds. Hence we have two commissioners, officers of the city of Dixon, insisting upon and performing an appeal for two self-confessed criminals. We have the further remarkable attitude of the city council of the city of Dixon by resolution pledging their credit, influence and its officer to defend the men who, in open court, swore that they were guilty of the violation of the laws of the state of Illinois and the ordinance of the city of Dixon, and one a procurer of another to commit crime and both of whom in open court confessed they were guilty of an unmentionable crime.

Just what authority a city council has to do such a thing is beyond the ken of any lawyer.

H. A. BROOKS.

Editorial Note—The above communication, which is Mr. Brooks' reply to the charges made against him by members of the city council at their meeting on Monday evening last, was sent to this office by the signer, with the request that we publish it.

No matter which side of a controversy the Telegraph may be in sympathy with, it has always been its policy to allow all sides the use of the "People's Column" in which they may state their own side of the case.

Man of His Word.

"Central," he said patiently, "you have given me the wrong number seven times now. If you do it again I shall report you. I want Weehauken 7-50 V."

There was a whirring, a clicking, then a clicking whirring.

"Hello," he said, "is this you, Dolly?"

"Yes," answered a sweet voice, put up to it, of course, by its fair owner.

"This is Lawrence Seelingbass. I called up to tell you that if you don't marry me I'll go to Africa and be shot by lions."

"I'll marry you, foolish boy. You've never asked me before, you know."

"What! Who is this?"

"Dolly Darlingham."

He hung up the receiver as if he had been shot. Central had given him the wrong connection again!

On his way to the jeweler's to buy Dolly Darlingham a diamond solitaire he stepped in at the Beestone telephone office to report the operator, for in all things Lawrence Seelingbass was a man of his word.—Philadelphia Evening Times.

Improved Gas Light.

According to the Scientific American, experiments are at present in progress in Paris as the result of which it is hoped to secure an increased light efficiency from incandescent gas burners. Under present conditions the gas pressure in the mains is sufficient to draw a certain amount of air into the burner, where it becomes mixed with the gas, causing the characteristic blue flame. But the amount of air thus drawn into the flame is only about three times that of the gas, whereas, for the best effect, the ration should be five to one. It has been found that by compressing the gas in the mains the desirable ratio of air can be caused to enter the flame. One of the boulevards in Paris has lamps working on this system, and the results are exceedingly satisfactory.

FATHER ROUSED THE BOY

Follows Doctor's Advice and Casts the Lure That Tempts Fleeting Ambition.

"The boy is all right," said the doctor, "but you want to talk to him and rouse his ambition. Promise him that you will take him somewhere when he recovers sufficiently to go out—to a vaudeville show, for instance; talk to him about playing with the boys; there are lots of ways in which you can interest him."

Then the doctor addressed the boy, who was just recovering from a fever, saying:

"Come, Tommy, cheer up, my boy; wouldn't you like to go and play with your schoolmates?"

A faint smile stole over the boy's face, but that was all.

"Stop, sir," said the father; "I'll arouse him. See here, Tommy," he asked, addressing the boy, "wouldn't you like to go out and throw a stone through Mother Bibb's candy shop window?"

The boy immediately sat up in bed and asked for his clothes.

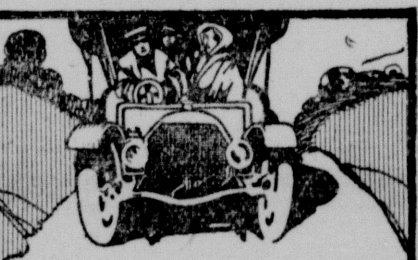

"I thought that 'd rouse the boy," said the father, with a proud smile. "He's all right, doctor."—Kansas City Journal.

CHAPTER XVII.

Mrs. Chedsoye Has Doubts.

Mrs. Chedsoye retired to her room early that memorable December night. Her brother could await the return of Horace. She hadn't the least doubt as to the result; a green young man pitted against a seasoned veteran's duplicity. She wished Jones no harm physically; in fact, she had put down the law against it. Still, much depended upon chance. But for all her confidence of the outcome, a quality of restlessness pervaded her. She tried to analyze it, ineffectually at first. Perhaps she did not care enough; perhaps she did not care thoroughly to examine the source of it. Insistently, however, it returned; and by repeated assaults it at length conquered her. It was the child.

Did she possess, after all, a latent sense of motherhood, and was it stirring to establish itself? She really did not know. Was it not fear and doubt rather than motherly instinct? She paused in front of the mirror, but the glass solved only externals. She could not see her soul there in the reflection; she saw only the abundant gifts of nature, splendid, double-handed, prodigal. And in contemplating that reflection, she forgot for a space what she was seeking. But that child! From whom did she inherit her peculiar ideas of life? From some Puritan ancestor of her father's; certainly not from her side. She had never bothered her head about Fortune, save to house and clothe her, till the past forty-eight hours. And now it was too late to pick up the thread she had cast aside as not worth considering. To no one is given perfect wisdom; and she recognized the flaw in hers that had led her to ignore the mental attitude of the girl. She had not even made a friend of her; a mistake, a bit of stupidity absolutely foreign to her usual keenness. The child lacked little of being beautiful, and in three or four years she would be Mrs. Chedsoye was without jealousy; she accepted beauty in all things unreservedly. Possessing as she did an incomparable beauty of her own, she could well afford to be generous. Perhaps the true cause of this disturbance lay in the knowledge that there was one thing her daughter had inherited from her directly, almost identically; indeed, of this pattern the younger possessed the wider margin of the two: courage. Mrs. Chedsoye was afraid of nothing except wrinkles, and Fortune was too young to know this fear. So then, the mother slowly began to comprehend the spirit which had given life to this singular perturbation. Fortune had declared that she would run away; and she had the courage to carry out the threat.

Resolutely Mrs. Chedsoye rang for her maid Celeste. Thoughts like these only served to disturb the marble smoothness of her forehead.

The two began to pack. That is to say, Celeste began; Mrs. Chedsoye generally took charge of these maneuvers from the heights, as became the officer in command. Bending was likely to enlarge the vein in the neck; and all those beautiful gowns would not be worth a solid without the added perfection of her lineless throat and neck. She was getting along in years, too, a fact which was assuming the proportions of a cross; and more and more she must husband those lingering (not to say beguiling) evidences of youthfulness.

"We might as well get Fortune's things out of the way, too, Celeste."

"Yes, Madame."

"As Madame knows," came from the depth of the cavernous trunk. Celeste was no longer surprised; at least she never evinced this emotion. For twelve years now she had gone from one end of the globe to the other, upon the shortest notice. While surprise was lost to her or under such control as to render it negligible, she still shivered with pleasurable excitement at the thought of entering a port. Madame was so clever, so transcendently clever! If she, Celeste, had not been loyal, she might have retired long ago, and owned a shop of her own in the busy Rue de Rivoli. But that would have ruined the business existence; and besides, she would have grown fat, which, of the seven horrors confronting woman, so Madame said, was first in number.

"Be very careful how you handle that blue ball-gown."

"Oh, Madame!" reproachfully.

"It is the silver braid. Do not press the rosettes too harshly."

Celeste looked up. Mrs. Chedsoye answered her inquiring gaze with a thin smile.

"You are wonderful, Madame!"

"And so are you, Celeste, in your way."

At ten o'clock Mrs. Chedsoye was ready for her pillow. She slept fitfully; awoke at eleven and again at twelve. After that she knew nothing more till the maid roused her with the cup of chocolate. She sat up and bided slowly. Celeste waited at the bedside with the tray. Her admiration for her mistress never waned. Mrs. Chedsoye was just as beautiful in dishabille as in a ball-gown. She drained the cup, and as she turned to replace it upon the tray, dropped it with a clatter, a startled cry coming from her lips.

"Madame?"

"Fortune's bed!"

It had not been slept in. The steamer-cloak lay across the counterpane exactly where Celeste herself had laid it the night before. Mrs. Chedsoye sprang out of her bed and ran barefoot to the other. Fortune had not been in the room since dinner-time.

"Celeste, dress me as quickly as possible. Hurry! Something has happened to Fortune!"

Never, in all her years of service, could she recollect such a toilet as Madame made that morning. And never before had she shown such concern over her daughter. It was amazing!

"The little fool! The little fool!"

Mrs. Chedsoye repeatedly murmured as the nimble fingers of the maid flew over her. "The silly little fool; and at a time like this!" Not that remorse of any kind stirred Mrs. Chedsoye's conscience; she was simply extremely annoyed.

She hastened out into the corridor and knocked at the door of her brother's room. No answer. She flew down-stairs, and there she saw him coming in from the street. He greeted her cheerily.

"It's all right, Kate; plenty of room on the Ludwig. We shall take the afternoon train for Port Said. She sails at dawn to-morrow instead of to-night. . . . What's up?" suddenly noticing his sister's face.

"Fortune did not return to her room last night."

"What? Where do you suppose the little fool went, then?"

They both seemed to look upon Fortune as a little fool.

"Yesterday she threatened to run away."

"Run away? Kate, be sensible. How the deuce could she run away? She hasn't a penny. It takes money to go anywhere over here. She has probably found some girl friend, and has spent the night with her. We'll soon find out where she is." The Major wasn't worried.

"Have you seen Horace?" with discernible anxiety.

"No. I didn't wait up for him. He's sleeping off a night of it. You know his falling."

"Find out if he is in his room. Go to the porter's bureau and inquire for both him and Jones."

The Major, perceiving that his sister was genuinely alarmed, rushed over to the bureau. No, neither Mr. Ryan nor Mr. Jones had been in the hotel since yesterday. Would the porter send some one up to the rooms of those gentlemen to make sure? Certainly. No; there was no one in the rooms. The Major was now himself perturbed. He went back to Mrs. Chedsoye.

"Kate, neither has been in his room since yesterday. If you want my opinion, it is this: Huddy has sequestered Jones all right, and is somewhere in town, sleeping off the effects of a night of it."

"He has run away with Fortune!" she cried. Her expression was tragic. She couldn't have told whether it was due to her daughter's disappearance or to Horace's defection. "Did he not threaten?"

"Yes, Madame."

"And bring my chocolate at half after eight in the morning. It is quite possible that we shall sail tomorrow night from Port Said. If not from there, from Alexandria. It all depends upon the booking, which can not be very heavy going west this time of year."

"As Madame knows," came from the depth of the cavernous trunk. Celeste was no longer surprised; at least she never evinced this emotion. For twelve years now she had gone from one end of the globe to the other, upon the shortest notice. While surprise was lost to her or under such control as to render it negligible, she still shivered with pleasurable excitement at the thought of entering a port. Madame was so clever, so transcendently clever! If she, Celeste, had not been loyal, she might have retired long ago, and owned a shop of her own in the busy Rue de Rivoli. But that would have ruined the business existence; and besides, she would have grown fat, which, of the seven horrors confronting woman, so Madame said, was first in number.

"Be very careful how you handle that blue ball-gown."

"Oh, Madame!" reproachfully.

"It is the silver braid. Do not press the rosettes too harshly."

Celeste looked up. Mrs. Chedsoye answered her inquiring gaze with a thin smile.

"You are wonderful, Madame!"

"And so are you, Celeste, in your way."

"Sh! not so loud, Kate."

"The little simpleton defied me yesterday, and declared she would leave me."

"Oh!" The Major fingered his imperial. "That puts a new face to the subject. But Jones! He has not turned up. We can not move till we find out what has become of him. I know. I'll jump into a carriage and see if he got as far as the English-Bar."

Mrs. Chedsoye did not go up-stairs, but paced the lounging-room, lithe and pantherish. Frequently she paused, as if examining the patterns in the huge carpets. She entered the reception-room, came back, wandered off into the ball-room, stopped to inspect the announcement hanging upon the bulletin-board, returned to the windows and watched the feluccas sail past as the great bridge opened; and during all these aimless occupations but a single thought busied her mind: what could a man like Horace see in a chit like Fortune?

It was an hour and a half before the Major put in an appearance. He was out of breath and temper.

"Come up to the room." Once there, he sat down and bade her do likewise.

"There's the devil to pay. You heard Huddy speak of the nigger who guarded the Holy Yhordes, and that he wanted to get out of Cairo before he turned up? Well, he turned up. He fooled Huddy to the top of his bent. So far as I could learn, Fortune and Huddy and Jones are all in the same boat, kidnapped by the Mahomed, and carried out into the desert, headed, God knows where! Now, don't get excited. Take it easy. Luck is with us, for Huddy left all the diagrams with me. We need him, but not so much that we can't go on without him. You see, these Arabs are like the Hindus; touch anything that concerns their religion, and they'll have your hair off. How Fortune got into it I can't imagine, unless Mahomed saw her with Huddy and jumped to the conclusion that they were lovers. All this Mahomed wants is the rug; and he is going to hold them all he gets it. No use notifying the police. No one would know where to find him. None of them will come to actual harm. Anyhow, the coast is clear. Kate, there's a big thing in front. No nerves. We've got to go to-day. Time is everything. Our butler and first man cabled this morning that they had just started in, and that everything was running like clock-work. We'll get into New York in time for the coup. Remember, I was against the whole business at the start, but now I'm going to see it off."

Feverishly Mrs. Chedsoye prepared for the journey. She was irritable to Celeste, she was unbearable to her brother, who took a seat in a forward compartment to be rid of her. It was only when they went aboard the steamer that night that she became reconciled to the inevitable. At any rate, the presence of Jones would counteract any influence Horace might have gained over Fortune. That the three of them might suffer unheard-of miseries never formed thought in her mind. It appealed to her in the sense of a comedy which annoyed rather than amused her.

They were greeted effusively by Wallace, he of the bulbous nose; and his first inquiry was of Ryanne. Briefly the Major told him what had happened and added his fears. Wallace was greatly cast down. Huddy had so set his heart upon this venture that it was a shame to proceed without him. He had warned him at the beginning about that infernal rug; but Huddy was always set in his daredevil schemes. So long as the Major had the plans, he supposed that they could turn the trick without Huddy's assistance; only, it seemed rather hard for him not to be in the sport.

"He told me that nothing would give him greater pleasure than to stick his fist in the first bag of yellow-boys. There was something mysterious in the way he used to chuckle over the thing when I first sprung it on him. He saw a joke somewhere. Let's go into the smoke-room for a peg. It won't hurt either of us. And that poor little girl! It's a hell of a world, eh?"

The Major admitted that it was; but he did not add that Fortune's welfare or ill-fare was of little or no concern of his. The little spitefire had always openly despised him.

They were drinking silently and morosely, when Mrs. Chedsoye, pale and anxious, appeared in the companionway. She beckoned them to follow her down to her cabin. Had Fortune arrived? Had Ryanne? She did not answer. Arriving at her cabin she pushed the two wondering men inside, and pointed at the floor. A large steamer-roller lay unstrapped, spread out.

"I only just opened it," she said. "I never thought of looking into it at Cairo. Here, it looked so bulky that I was curious."

"Why, it's that damned Yhordes!" exclaimed the Major wrathfully. "What the devil is it doing in Fortune's steamer-roller?"

"That is what I should like to know. If they have been kidnapped in order to recover the rug, whatever will become of them?" And Mrs. Chedsoye touched the rug with her foot, absently. She was repeating in her mind that childish appeal: "You don't how loyal I should have been!"

They took the first sailing out of Naples. Twelve days later they landed at the foot of Fourteenth Street. There was some trifling difficulty over the rug. It had been declared, but as Mrs. Chedsoye and her brother always declared foreign residence, there was a question as to whether it was dutiable or not. Being a copy, it was not an original work of art, therefore not exempt, and so forth and so on. It was finally decided that Mrs. Chedsoye must pay a duty. The Major paid grudgingly, very cleverly assuming an irritability well known to the inspectors. The way the United States government mulcted her citizens for the benefit of the few was a scandal of the nations. A smooth-faced young man approached them from out the crowd.

"Is this Major Callahan?"

"Yes. This must be Mr. Reynolds, the agent?"

"Yes. Everything is ready for your occupancy. Your butler and first man have everything ship-shape. I could have turned over to you Mr. Jones."

"Not at all, not at all," said the Major. "They would have been strangers to us and we to them. Our own servants are best."

"You must be very good friends of my client?"

"I have known him for years," said Mrs. Chedsoye sweetly. "It was at his own suggestion that we take the house over for the month. He really insisted that we should pay him nothing; but, of course, such an arrangement could not be thought of. Oh, good-by, Mr. Wallace," tolerantly.

"We hope to see you again some day."

Wallace, taking up his role once more, tipped his hat and rushed away for one of his favorite haunts.

"Boulder!" growled the Major. "Well, well; a ship's deck is always Liberty-Hall."

"You have turned your belongings over to an expressman?" asked the agent. These were charming people; and any doubts he might have entertained were dissipated. And why should he have any doubts? Jones was an eccentric young chap, anyhow.

An explanatory letter (written by the Major in Jones' careless hand), backed up by a cable, was enough authority for any reasonable man.

"Everything is out of the way," said the Major.

"Then, if you wish, I can take you right up to the house in my car. Your butler said that he would have lunch ready when you arrived."

"Very kind of you. How noisy New York is! You can take our hand-luggage?" Mrs. Chedsoye would have made St. Anthony uneasy of mind; Reynolds, young, alive, metaphorically felt at her feet.

"Plenty of room for it."

"I am glad that you see, Mr. Jones, I trust a fine old rug to us to bring home for him."

The Major looked up at the roof of the dingy shed. He did not care to have Reynolds note the flicker of admiration in his eyes. The cleverest woman of them all! The positive touch to the whole daredevil affair! And he would not have thought of it had he lived to be a thousand. "One might as well disembark in a stable," he said aloud. "Ah! We are ready to go, then?"

They entered the limousine and went off buzzing and zigzagging among the lumbering trucks. The agent drove the car himself.

"Where is Jones now?" he asked the Major, who sat at his left. "Haven't had a line from him for a month."

"Just before we sailed," said Mrs. Chedsoye through the window, over the Major's shoulder. "He went into the desert for a fortnight or so; with a caravan. He had heard of some fabulous carpet."

Touch number two. The Major grinned. "Jones is one of the best judges I have ever met. He was off at a bound. I only hope he will get back before we leave for California." The Major drew up his collar. It was a cold, blustery day.

The agent was delighted. What luck a fellow like Jones had! To wander all over creation and to meet charming people! And when they invited him to remain for luncheon, the victory was complete.

Mrs. Chedsoye strolled in and out of the beautifully appointed rooms. Never had she seen more excellent taste. Not too much; everything perfectly placed, one object nicely balanced against another. Here was a rare bit of Capo di Monte, there a piece of Sevres or Canton. Some houses, with their treasures, look like museums, but this one did not. The owner had not gone mad over one subject; here was a sane and prudent collector. The great yellow Chinese carpet represented a fortune; she knew enough about carpets to realize this fact. Ivories, jades, lapis-lazuli, the precious woods, priceless French and Japanese bronzes, some fine paintings and tapestries, the rooms were full of unspoken romance and adventure; echoed with war and tragedy, too. And Fortune might have married a man like this one. A possibility occurred to her, and the ghost of a smile moderated the interest in her face. They might be upon the desert for weeks. Who knew what might not happen to two such romantic simpletons?

The butler and the first man (who was also the cook) were impeccable types of servants; so thought Reynolds. They moved silently and anticipated each want. Reynolds determined that very afternoon to drop a line to Jones and compliment him upon his good taste in the selection of his friends. A subsequent press of office work, however, drove the determination out of his mind.

The instant his car carried him out of sight, a strange scene was enacted. The butler and the first man seized the Major by the arms, and the three executed a pas-sen. Mrs. Chedsoye eyed these manifestations of joy stonily.

"Now then, what's been done?" asked the Major, pulling down his cuffs and shaking the wrinkles from his sleeves.

"Half done!" cried the butler. "Fine! What do you do with the rug?"

"Car it away in an automobile every night, after the gun starts down the other end of the street."

"Gun?" The Major did not quite understand.

"Gun or bull; that's the argot for policeman."

"Thieves' argot," said Mrs. Chedsoye contemptuously.

The butler laughed. He knew Giocanda of old.

"Where's that wall-safe?" the Major wanted to know.

"Behind that sketch by Detaille." And the butler, strange to say, pronounced it Det-I.

"Can you open it?"

"Tried, but failed. Wallace is the man for that."

"He'll be along in an hour or so."

"Where's Ryanne?"

"Don't know; don't care." The Major sketched the predicament of their fellow-conspirator.

The butler whistled, but callously. One more or less didn't matter in such an enterprise.

When Wallace arrived he applied his talent and acquired science to the wall-safe, and finally swung outward the little steel door. The Major pushed him aside and thrust a hand into the metal cavity, drawing out an exquisite Indian casket of rosewood and mother-of-pearl. He opened the lid and dipped a hand within. Emeralds, deep and light and shaded, cut and uncut and engraved, flawed and almost perfect. He raised a handful and let them tinkle back into the casket. One hundred in all, beauties, every one of them, and many famous.

And while he toyed with them, pleased as a child would have been, over a handful of marbles, Mrs. Chedsoye spread out the ancient Yhordes in the library. She stood upon the central pattern, musing. Her mood was not one which she had called into being; not often did she become retrospective; the past to her was always like a page in a book, once finished, turned down. Her elbow in one palm, her chin in the other, she stared without seeing. It was this house, this home, it was each sign of riches without luxury or ostentation, where money expressed itself by taste and simplicity; a home such as she had always wanted. And why, with all her beauty and intellect, why had she not come into possession? She knew. Love that gives had never been hers; hers had been the love that receives, self-love. She had bargained her body once for riches and had been fooled, and she never could do it again. . . . And the child was overflowing with the love that gives. She couldn't understand. The child was the essence of it; and she, her mother, had always laughed at her.

The flurry of snow outside in the court she saw not. Her fancy reformed the pretty garden at Mentone, inclosed by pink-washed walls. Many a morning from her window she had watched Fortune among the flowers, going from one to the other, like a bee or a butterfly. She had watched her grow, too, with that same detachment a machinist feels as he puts together the invention of another man. Would she ever see her again? Her shoulders moved ever so little. Probably not. She had blundered wilfully. She should have waited, thrown the two together, maneuvered. And she had permitted this adventure to obsess her! She might have stood within this house by right of law, motherhood, marriage. Ryanne was in love with Fortune, and Jones by this time might be. The desert was a terribly lonely place.

She wished it might be Jones. And immediately retrospection fled away from her gaze and actualities resumed their functions. The wish was not without a phase of humor, formed as it was upon this magic carpet; but it nowise disturbed the gravity of her expression.

DECIDE YOURSELF

THE OPPORTUNITY IS HERE, BACKED BY TESTIMONY

Don't take our word for it. Don't depend on a stranger's statement. Read Dixon endorsement. Read the statements of Dixon citizens.

And decide for yourself. Here is one case of it: E. B. Fisher, barber 116 Hennepin Ave., Dixon, Ill., says: "All I said about Doan's Kidney Pills in 1909 when I publicly recommended them I am glad to confirm at this time. I know that they are just as represented. I had rheumatic pains through my back and limbs and when I stood in one position for any length of time it was hard for me to move. My kidneys acted irregularly and contained sediment. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I got a supply at Leake Bros. Drug store, and they did me so much good that I continued taking them. They made me strong and well. I still used this remedy once in awhile and it keeps my kidneys in good working order."

WOULD IMPEACH

JUSTICE WRIGHT

Philadelphia Attorney Says Jurist Was "Influenced" in Sentencing Labor Men.

JUDGE SPEER DENIES CHARGE

With Voice Broken by Sobs Answers Attack Made on Him by Former Mayor of Macon, Ga.—Colonel Huff Out on Bond.

Philadelphia, Aug. 1.—Francis Tracy Tobin, Philadelphia attorney and former candidate for congressman from the Sixth Pennsylvania district, asked the house of representatives to impeach Associate Justice Wright of the supreme court of the District of Columbia. Mr. Tobin alleges that Justice Wright was influenced by the Buck Stove and Range company in sentencing Samuel Gompers to a term of one year and John Mitchell to nine months recently on a charge of contempt.

Mr. Tobin charges that Justice Wright violated his oath of office in passing sentence on the two labor leaders as set forth in detail in his communication to Speaker Champ Clark.

Speer Answers Huff Attack. Macon, Ga., Aug. 1.—With tears streaming from his eyes and with his voice broken by sobs, United States Circuit Court Judge Emory Speer, from the bench here answered the attack made on him by a judge by Col. W. A. Huff, formerly mayor of Macon and member of the legislature.

Colonel Huff had demanded the impeachment of Judge Speer.

Judge Speer's defense was made when Colonel Huff was arraigned on the charge of contempt, which had been brought by Speer because of Huff's allegations. At the conclusion of Speer's defense of himself, he declared that he would not pass on the contempt charge which he had preferred against Huff, but would allow some other federal judge to decide the question. In the meanwhile Colonel Huff is out on bond.

Huff Given an Ovation.

There was a great crowd in and about the federal building and when Colonel Huff appeared he was given an ovation, with Judge Speer looking on. Hundreds rushed to shake Huff's hand and to assure him they would aid in bringing about an investigation of Judge Speer's conduct by congress.

Judge Speer was under great stress when he began his statement. He began by attacking the newspaper men for sending the story broadcast over the land. Then he broke down and, with tears coursing down his face, said that he had always conducted his court as he thought best.

Judge Speer denied that he had gone to Eagle River, Alaska, at the expense of Huff's receiver. He said he paid his own way, going and coming, and that the bearskin that was sent to him came with charges collect.

He said he owned stock in a mine at Eagle River, lawfully acquired. He denied the charge of showing favoritism to a so-called "family bank" of which his brother-in-law is vice-president. He said it was not customary for money on deposit in the possession of the court to draw interest. He declared that the Huff estate had increased 100 per cent. in value during its thirteen years in the custody of the court.

Judge Speer admitted the Huff estate had been held by the court for an unusual time, but denied that the delay was for purposes of grafting. The judge bitterly denied that his court sheltered grafting officials.

SEND AID TO AMERICANS

War Department Rushes Money and Tents to Refugees From Mexico.

Washington, Aug. 1.—By telegraphing $2,000 to El Paso for the immediate relief of American refugees from Mexico, and ordering that the 2,000 tents already en route be hurried on their way as much as possible, the war department showed its appreciation of the magnitude of the rescue work before it. Dispatches from the border indicate that nearly two thousand refugees have already gathered on this side of the Rio Grande, and that as many more will arrive within the next few days.

STRIKER DEAD IN RIOT

Six Others Shot, Twenty Hurt in London.

London, Aug. 1.—Seven strikers were shot, one of them dying later in a hospital, and twenty others seriously wounded by sticks and stones as the result of rioting at Victoria and other docks in London. The chief encounter occurred at the Victoria docks, where 2,000 of the laborers who had been on strike for over ten weeks appeared to resume work.

Boston, Aug. 1.—After two weeks of investigation of the recent strike of motormen and conductors of the Boston Elevated railway, the grand jury reported eight secret indictments.

SEVEN STRIKERS SHOT

TWENTY-SEVEN WOUNDED IN LONDON DOCK RIOTS.

Bullets, Sticks and Stones Fly in Clashes With Nonunionists—Police Reserves Called Out.

London, Aug. 1.—Seven strikers were shot, one of them dying later in a hospital, and 20 others seriously wounded by sticks or stones as the result of rioting at Victoria and other docks in London.

The chief encounter occurred at the Victoria docks, where 2,000 of the laborers who had been on strike for ten weeks appeared at the docks in compliance of the manifesto of the dockers' federation ordering them to resume work. They found, however, that their places were occupied by nonunionist or "free" laborers, who had been taken on during the strike and who were determined to continue to work.

They defied the men belonging to the union to eject them, and a severe fight ensued.

Bullets, bricks and stones flew in all directions. The police, of whom only about a dozen were present, were taken by surprise and were powerless to suppress the disturbance.

Large reserves of police were called up and finally succeeded in quelling the disturbances.

INDICT THREE IN FUNK CASE

True Bills Charge Conspiracy and Perjury Against Lawyer, Girl and Private Detective.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—The grand jury returned indictments in the alleged conspiracy against Clarence S. Funk, general manager of the International Harvester company, growing out of the alienation suit brought by John C. Henning, Attorney Daniel Donahue, Miss Aileen Heppner and Isaac Stiefel, a private detective, were indicted for conspiracy, and Miss Heppner also for perjury.

Henning was not indicted, according to State's Attorney Wayman, because his wife, who confessed to the alleged conspiracy, would not be able to testify against him.

RETURNS AFTER 33 YEARS

Illinoisan Long Thought Dead, Walks Into His Brother's Home Near Fairfield—Neither Knew the Other.

Fairfield, Aug. 1.—After an absence from his home here of more than a third of a century, Joseph K. Seerest walked into the home of his brother, L. P. Seerest, near Fairfield. Neither knew the other. Thirty-three years ago last September Seerest departed without telling his relatives good-by, or advising them where he was going.
He roamed over the south and southwest and settled at Clarksdale, Miss., where he progressed as a cotton planter. For the last 25 years his brother and sister here have thought him dead, and the estate of his father was settled 15 years ago on this supposition.

Insane Are Not Abused.
Springfield, Aug. 1.—Charges that patients in the Chester State Hospital for Insane Criminals have been abused, choked, kicked and beaten, fed unclean food, bedded under unclean blankets and without the use of clean towels and soap were declared unfounded and without basis by Judge B. R. Burroughs of the state board of administration and A. L. Bowen, executive secretary of the state charities commission.

Charles Breitske was released from Chester by habeas corpus in Judge
Winde's court in Chicago and May 21, 1912, printed charges against the institution.

The investigation by the state officers had been in progress since. In substance, it says, that the methods of discipline at Chester are recognized as the safest and best for that class of men, many of whom have committed murder or other crimes against the person.

The "choking" complained of consists in placing the fore arm under the chin of a fighting patient, the attendant being behind him. In this position the patient is unable to use his head and teeth in attack.

Not a single patient complained that he had ever been injured or caused serious pain by these methods of control.

Illinois Moose Licensed.
Springfield, Aug. 1.—Secretary of State Doyle licensed the incorporation of the National Progressive Convention association. The object of the incorporation is "to arrange for and hold public meetings and assemblies in Illinois, to promulgate and distribute literature and information in the interests of the National Progressive party and in any other manner to promote and advance such political party." The incorporators and the first board of directors are Ralph C. Otis, Laverne
W. Noyes, Frederick S. Oliver, George
F. Porter, Lawrence Heyworth, Edwin D. Keith and Medill McCormick. The corporation is not for profit and the principal office is in Chicago.

Buttermilk Replaces Beer.
Chicago, Aug. 1.—Consumption of beer in Chicago through the fiscal year ending June 30 last fell off 35,000 barrels according to the report of the local branch of the internal revenue department just made public. The decline has been noticeable for months, according to dealers, who attribute it both to the high cost of living and to the use of buttermilk as a substitute.

Farmer Killed in Runaway.
Fairfield, Aug. 1.—Asa Gibson, a farmer, residing a few miles north of this city, was killed in a runaway. He and his daughter, Edna, seventeen years old, were in a wagon when their team became frightened. The girl jumped out and was seriously hurt.
Her father was thrown under the wagon and run over, receiving internal injuries.

Centralia Bank Incorporates.
Springfield, Aug. 1.—State Auditor
McCullough issued a permit to J. F.
Mackey, J. J. Bundy, A. J. Guerretaz,
H. G. Cormick, Max Prill, R. J. Birge and E. L. Welton for the organization of the Centralia Trust and Savings bank, to be located at Centralia, Marion county, with a capital of $15,000 and a charter tenure of 50 years.

Campaign in Cairo for Pure Milk.
Cairo, Aug. 1.—A campaign for pure milk was started when Dr. E. C. Crawford of the state board of health and G. G. Bateman arrived in Cairo to inspect the milk supply. They will inspect cows, water supply which furnishes their drink, stables, milk houses and those who handle the products.

McLeansboro Marshal Sworn In.
McLeansboro, Aug. 1.—W. P. Brewster has been sworn in again as city marshal after a vacation of two months.
The retiring marshal, J. C.
Moorman, is a brother of the mayor,
J. E. Moorman.

teen years old, died from being struck by an Illinois Central train. Craig never regained consciousness.
